BILLINGS HEARING ADJOURNED TO TUESDAY

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

This night baseball may be a life saver to the minor leagues, but it's not so hot for the sporting editors of morning newspapers.

Once upon a time the sporting editor didn't have to worry about ball games. They were finished by six o'clock, the stories written, the league standings computed, and the stories up in type by nine o'clock.

But with three games at night, the sporting editor has to compile the league standings at midnight. And after a hard night's work, figuring averages isn't so hot.

Richmond deer hunters are returning to the city with tales of their Nimrodic powers.

One of the stories which was repeated to us yesterday concerns the "hi-jacking" of a deer.

One member of a local party shot a big buck. He hanged it to a tree and pushed on with the other members of his party.

When he returned to the spot where he had left the buck, he was more than surprised to see that it was gone.

Some other hunter had "helped himself" to the venison.

All America has read with considerable amusement the announcement of the engagement of H. L. Mencken, who has been termed "The Jesse James of American Letters."

Mencken has been loud in his scorn of women and marriage. In his book, "Prejudices" he cast more than one slam upon the holy state of matrimony.

He has always insisted that he would never be married.

But along with the rest of us boastful males, Mencken changed his story.

It seems that the loudest a man shouts against marriage, the quicker he falls in love and is married.

But Mencken shouldn't be taken too seriously; he is lured by the sweet, dulcet sounds of his own voice.

Speaking of books, if you haven't read Cabell's "Something About Eve," get it at the local library.

The tone was published several years ago, but it is still popular.

It is one of the "deepest" books that Cabell has ever written.

And it outdoes his "Jurgen."

When he read that he was reported missing he immediately returned, and going to his wife's bedside, who is ill, attempted to effect a reconciliation.

PILE DRIVER AT WORK ON FORD PLANT SITE HERE

At the rate work is progressing on the new Ford company plant on the Richmond inner harbor it is believed that it will not be long before forms for the building itself will rise above the level of the ground.

One pile driver is already at work and several others are ready to move onto the ground, graders are leveling the site and carpenters are busy building the preliminary houses.

The Western Foundation company of Chicago, which is doing the first pile driving work, is using a patent process whereby a form is driven into the ground and the concrete steel re-inforced pile is cast in the ground.

Temporary office buildings for the Clinton Construction company, which has the general contract, are almost complete and office forces are already moving in and placing things in order.

In preparation for the installation of the first unit of the sewer system, a steam shovel with crews of men are busy digging ditches, and other crews are at work running electric power lines to the scene of the activity.

Ford Comes To Richmond

Three years ago — on August 23 to be exact — the RECORD-HERALD carried the story of Richmond voters, by a vote of nearly nine to one, voting bonds of $690,000 for the improvement of the harbor.

One of the phrases which was used with telling effect during the campaign was "Keep Faith with Ford."

A week ago with fitting ceremonies the people of Richmond turned out to witness the formal ground breaking at the site on which the Ford factory is to be built.

Yesterday the first pile driver was shunted in place on the site. The active work on the plant has started.

FORD KEEPS THE FAITH

Ford has kept faith with Richmond.

When the first clod of dirt was turned at the Ford factory site, it marked an epoch for Richmond.

When Manager Groves told you that the plant would employ 2400 men, did you realize what that means?

It means there will be twenty-four hundred human units engaged in turning out 400 cars five days in every week.

ADDS MILLIONS TO PAYROLL

Henry Ford pays a minimum daily wage of $7. His employees work five days a week. That is at the rate of $35 a week. Multiply this minimum wage by 2400 and there is the staggering sum of four million, three hundred and sixty-eight thousand dollars being paid out annually. This is at the rate of $84,000 every week.

But the fattened pay roll is not the only item to be considered.

And mind you that the RECORD-HERALD is conservative in placing this figure, because there will be hundreds of exceptionally skilled and skillful engineers and artisans whose pay checks will go into big figures.

It means that the population of the city will be increased by thousands, because many of the men will be married and have children.

There will have to be homes, houses, apartments made ready for this fine influx of good people. The merchants will have to add to their large stocks to meet the growing demands.

Every avenue of human activity will show the effects of Ford coming to Richmond.

FORD MAGNET FOR OTHERS.

The very presence of Ford's factory here is convincing proof to other big industrialists that Richmond has those things essential to industries: Climate, water, transportation, good living conditions. Therefore if Ford finds it wise to locate here, others will follow, "as the night the day."

So much for Ford.

Other great building programs which will mean financial and industrial benefits to Richmond are the bridge from Richmond to the Marin county shore. This is a project which calls for an expenditure of fifteen million dollars. And it will divert to and through Richmond numberless thousands of tourists and motorists. It will put Richmond definitely upon the map as a focal traffic spot.

The building of the bridge will bring a lot of money into circulation. Don't forget that.

BAY BRIDGE PROGRAM.

And the Golden Gate and Goat Island bridge from San Francisco to the Alameda shore, a $72,000,000 program, will call for labor from this community as an immediate benefit, and as a future asset it will mean that thousands of people tired of living in cramped surroundings in the Golden Gate city will be induced to seek homes in the East Bay, and Richmond will get her share of these.

ANOTHER TRUNK LINE.

The coming of the Great Northern Railroad into this territory, upon the completion of the link from Keddie to Klamath Falls, will give Richmond another trunk line of railroad. The Great Northern will tie into the Western Pacific, using that company's rails to the seaboard here.

$100,000,000 TERMINAL.

The Great Northern and Western Pacific, it is said, plan to spend one hundred million dollars in developing a vast terminal system in the Eastbay which will reach for miles, coming into this immediate area, and adding to the large onnage for ship side from the vast hinterland embraced in the fertile San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys.

Richmond today is "sitting pretty."

She may be the envy of some, but she compels the admiration of all, and instead of her present position of the "Fourth Pay Roll City in California," she, within the next decade, may easily become the First Pay Roll City.

CUNHA SAYS BOTH MEN GUILTY

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—UP—The Supreme Court of California today declared the hearings on the pardon application of Warren K. Billings, convicted of complicity in the 1916 Preparedness Day Parade bombing, stood adjourned until Tuesday, August 12, because of pressure of other business and to allow the Justices to have their weekly conference.

At the same time it was announced that there would be no further move to bring Billings from Folsom penitentiary to appear before the court in his own behalf until after the board of prison directors meet Saturday to hear an opinion of the Attorney General as to the status of such a procedure.

In making this announcement, Chief Justice Waste intimated that the Court had no intention of going against the wishes of the prison board and Warden Coulter Smith, and that the Justices would journey to Folsom to hear the prisoner if it were necessary.

On Stand
Two former deputy prosecuting attorneys, Edward Cunha and James F. Brennan, occupied the witness stand during today's sessions, and told their stories under the questioning of the Justices.

During the morning session Cunha stated definitely that he opposed a pardon for Billings and that he believed both Billings and Mooney guilty "under the code."

This line of argument gave rise during the afternoon to a bitter controversy between Cunha, the Justices, and Edwin V. McKenzie, attorney for Billings. Cunha told the court that a complete file of "The Blast," radical organ in circulation at the time of the bombing, had been found in Billings' room by police, along with certain letters which Billings attempted to hide before the dynamiting.

Attorneys Clash
McKenzie immediately opposed vehemently the admittance to evidence of these copies of "The Blast" on the grounds that he could prove (Continued on Page 3)

FORD FILES FRIENDLY SUIT

A friendly suit to quiet title to the Ford company rights in Hall avenue, has been filed against the City of Richmond by the company.

The company had executed a deed to the city reserving the right to have that street used, that it should revert to the Ford Motor company.

The Ford company in the same suit, is quieting title to their rights in approximately 11 acres of ground deeded to the city for the purpose of maintaining navigable ship channel and asking that in the event said property is not maintained as a ship channel, the 11 acres revert back to the company.

Beggar And Dog Play Role Of Damon-Pythias

LOS ANGELES.—UP—Richard E. New is fighting for the life of Billie and Billie is fighting for his own life because of New.

Billie, who shows strains of Alaskan husky and Spitz blood in his veins, together with a variety of other strains is New's transportation and his "best friend."

New lost his legs four years ago in a balloon accident and since that time Billie has been his constant companion. New had a little seat built on some roller skates and until recently has been a familiar figure on Los Angeles streets, selling pencils while Billie pulls him around.

A few days ago Billie was attacked by a larger and heavier dog and, though his heart was strong, Billie was no match for his bigger opponent. New was unable to help his companion because of the rush of the other dog and had to call on spectators to separate the dogs.

Billie is in a serious condition as a result of the brawl, but veterinarians say he has a fighting chance to save his life.

Gretna Green In Comeback

LONDON.—UP—The luck of the blacksmith shop, "Gretna Green," in Scotland, is turning.

For years there was a popular superstition that a couple who clasped hands over the smithy's anvil would live nappy forever and ever.

Thousands of couples were married there. Then the shop lost its popularity. A law was passed making it necessary that a couple live in Scotland 21 days before they could be married there. Prior to that they could slip over from England and enjoy complete secrecy.

Lately, however, business has revived. The smithy fitted up his shop with many relics, and, according to protesting clergymen, as many as 2,000 persons in one day have paid 10 cents each to see the place.

Worker Finds Antique Gems

LISEON.—UP—A workman in the fields of a farm known as "O Alama," in Sobral da Odeia, province of Alentejo, discovered a set of precious jewels, which Portuguese archaeologists assert is at least 1,000 years old.

The jewels compose a complete set of adornments for a woman—a diadem, a necklace and two wristlets. The jewels were found in the possession of the Administrator of the band to go around the hair, a diamond necklace and two wristlets. The jewels were found in the possession of the Administrator of the band to go around the hair, a diamond necklace and two wristlets.

The total weight is 3.3 pounds. The entire set is of the same design, devoid of any inscriptions. Nearby was found a case, in which the jewels evidently were kept.

Archaeologists are divided in their opinions concerning the find—some opine the jewels to be the product of Roman art, others see in them an Etruscan influence, while still others say they must have been made in Scandinavia. Meantime they remain in the possession of the Administrator of the band to go around the hair, a diamond necklace and two wristlets.

Life Guards Find Coins

LUDINGTON, Mich.—UP—A lonely vigil is kept by coast guard and lighthouse crews at Big Sable point north of this city. They live in complete isolation the year around. Finding of coins and other antiques by different members of the crew indicate that the point was visited by early explorers. Three years ago a large canoe was unearthed but was unearthed but washed away before crews could rescue it. Recently Albert Howard, in charge of the coast guard station, found an ancient Spanish coin in the sands near the beach. It bore the date of 1731, and was picked up where Pere Marquette died on only 10 miles south of the point May 18, 1675.

Death Valley Scotty Still Builds Dreams

TONOPAH, Nev.—UP—Mystery and more mystery—Death Valley Scotty is never so happy as when weaving some new mystery.

Although the thermometer at Scotty's Grapevine canyon ranch on the border of Death Valley, registers 130, trucks started a few days ago hauling three carloads of coal from Beatty to the $2,000,000 home of Scotty and his partner, A. M. Johnson, the Chicago insurance magnate.

"You use fuel oil for your Diesel engine, why the coal?" someone asked.

"Oh," replied Scotty, as he flicked an imaginary speck of dirt from his red tie, "you know we have so much company at the big house that Johnson and I never have a minute to ourselves for planning what we want to do next to keep our income from growing too big, so we've decided to build another palace; this one up on top of Telescope mountain, 8,000 feet up among the clouds. Gets pretty cold up there along about October."

Scotty estimates it will cost $25,000 or more to build a road to the proposed new house.

CAPTURING OF SUN LIGHT TO BE SHOWN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6—UP—As casually as the average person invites a friend over for an evening of bridge, Dr. William George Schnell, young Los Angeles scientist, today asked a group of men and women to meet with him while he produces light without the aid of power.

Dr. Schnell's guests at the experiment will be a small company of University professors from the University of Southern California and the University of California, other scientists and newspapermen. The time was set for Thursday afternoon.

Just what the young scientist will do and just how the light will be gathered is a mystery. Dr. Schnell smiled as he said confidently that he did not fear the secret of his discovery would become public property even after the other scientists watched him at work.

New Process
The process, as near as can be learned, represents a compound of certain minerals and oils, which, when exposed to daylight, capture the sun's rays. These are retained indefinitely and increase as time passes.

In a perfectly business-like manner Dr. Schnell informed his guests to be that the light he takes from the sun will be extremely powerful.

"At one point during the demonstration I will expose a light of approximately 3,000 candlepower," he said. "Unless you are equipped with colored glasses you will suffer from the glare."

Dr. Schnell declared that he will produce lights of varied colors and surprising brilliance. He said there was no trace of phosphorus in his compound, although radium is one of the essential basic minerals.

Takes Atoms
"In simple terms, I have incorporated the atoms which composed the sun and I have incorporated them in my compound," the 28-year-old inventor explained. "When this compound is exposed to the sun's rays there is a natural affinity and light is impregnated in the compound. The strength of the light can be regulated by changing the compound and by limiting the exposure to the sun."

A few years ago Schnell was a student at the University of Colorado. He said that one day while working in the University laboratory he noticed a certain mineral would shine in the dark after a few seconds exposure to the sun.

To Get Patent
His curiosity was aroused and he devoted what money he had to the study of powerless light. After leaving Colorado he studied in Germany and at the University of Dresden.

Dr. Schnell said he traveled thousands of miles through the Alps, the Ural mountains and other foreign places seeking minerals and compounds to use in his work.

After showing his experiment to his attorney, Mr. Blythe, the inventor will prepare to go to Washington D. C., to secure patent rights, he said.

FOUR FIRMS TO CONTROL LINES OF REORGANIZED KEY SYSTEM

OAKLAND, Aug. 6—Four new companies came into existence today with the sale of the properties of the Key System Transit company today at foreclosure and the filing of articles of incorporation at Sacramento for the new companies.

The East Bay Street Railways, Ltd., East Bay Motor Coach Lines, Ltd., Key System, Ltd., and the Key Terminal Railway, Ltd., are the new companies.

The stock of the new companies, together with the Key System Service company, which operates the restaurants and newsstands on Key System boats and in waiting rooms, will all be owned by the Railway Equipment and Realty Company, Ltd., which was incorporated Dec. 11, 1929.

Statement Made
In connection with the sale and reorganization, officials made the following statement:

"The foreclosure sale of the Key System properties, which took place at eleven a. m. today on the Alameda County Court House steps in Oakland, and the incorporation of the new companies marked another step towards the consummation of the plan of readjustment of the Key System.

"Pursuant to the plan of readjustment, which was made public on July 20, 1929, and in accordance with the decree of foreclosure signed on June 23rd last by Judge John J. Allen, the properties were sold in parcel lots by J. B. Lanktree, commissioner appointed by the court for that purpose. As a result of this procedure the various lines of business that have been conducted by a single company, since the consolidation effected in 1912 by F. M. ('Borax') Smith and his associates, will hereafter be conducted by separate companies.

"Under the plan for readjustment owners of a large majority of the bonds and stocks of the Key System Transit company have deposited their securities with the readjustment committee and are to receive in exchange bonds and stocks of the Railway Equipment and Realty Company, Ltd. This company today acquired title to one of the parcels, in which the properties were sold, and thus becomes the owner of the real estate and transportation equipment of the old transit company, as well as the stock of the Key System Service company. As soon as the remaining legal formalities can be completed, it will also become the owner of all of the stocks of the four newly incorporated companies. Title in the meantime is vested in those who made the purchases at today's foreclosure sale. They are:

"STREET RAILWAYS—J. D. Cronin, E. Ofte and W. J. Smith;
"COACH LINES—W. R. Keefe, L. O. Alward and E. J. Klopel;
"KEY SYSTEM LINES—B. W. Campbell, A. B. Peterson and R. F. Gelfand.

"TERMINAL—A. Strandberg, W. A. Fitzmaurice and J. B. Wilson. They are all residents of the East Bay cities and members of the former transit company's staff.

New Set Up
When the remaining details have been completed, the result will be a corporate set-up very similar to that of the Southern Pacific-Golden Gate Ferries and Western Pacific Railroad, whose stocks are owned by the public and traded in on various exchanges, and are companies owning subsidiary companies by which their public utility business is conducted.

"Alfred J. Lundberg, who has been president of the Key System Transit Company since July 21, 1927 is president of the Railway Equipment and Realty Company, Ltd., and also heads all of the subsidiary companies except the one which will own the terminal. This is headed by Francis H. Crosby, who has been vice president of the transit company during Lundberg's administration.

"Many effects of the success of the plan for readjustment will soon become visible to East Bay residents. The orange color, which has been used by the 'traction company' since the days of 'Borax' Smith regime, is soon to disappear from all equipment except the transit trains and boats. The street cars of the East Bay Street Railways, Ltd., are to be painted in cream and green; while the buses of the East Bay Motor Coach Lines, Ltd., will be cream and blue. Attractive new emblems, symbolizing transportation in the East Bay cities will soon adorn the equipment which is being modernized in every respect and equipped with the latest safety devices as quickly as the large force of men at the Emeryville shops can turn out the work. The new emblem, modernistic in treatment, have at their central feature a conventionalized representation of the streets of downtown Oakland and were designed by Andrew T. Hass of Alameda.

Expansion Seen
"Among other developments anticipated will be a considerable expansion of the electric freight switching business. According to applications now pending before the Oakland City Council and the Oakland Port Commission, this service may soon be made available to shippers in the Oakland Outer Harbor area and a portion of West Oakland. New and powerful electric locomotives of the latest design are to be purchased for this business which will be operated by the Key Terminal Railway, Ltd.

"The successful consummation of the plan for readjustment marks a long step towards the placing of transportation in the East Bay cities upon a sound footing," Lundberg said today. Lundberg, who took over the administration of the transit company when it was in a precarious financial position, headed a new management that represented in many respects a complete change in company policies.

"We found," Lundberg says, "that the financial structure of the old company was awkward and inflexible. The properties were burdened with mortgages containing burdensome restrictions. There was a large floating debt as well as bonds amounting to approximately twenty million dollars. The net earnings were insufficient to meet the fixed charges on this large debt; and thus the company suffered, not only from the external troubles in the way of declining earnings, transitory business, excessive taxation, and other difficulties which beset practically every American urban transportation company today, but also from an entirely different set of internal troubles that could only be cured by a readjustment of the financial structure. This has now been accomplished. The funded debt of some twenty million dollars has been reduced to four and one-half millions, all of which is in the form of Equipment Trust Certificates. There is thus a smaller percentage of bonds in relation to the Railroad Commission value of the properties than is the case with any other public utility in the state, it being less than 18 per cent of the rate base value as compared with over 50 per cent for most other utilities."

Parties Out
"Stripped of all legal technicalities, today's foreclosure sale, Lundberg points out, really represents the acquisition of the properties by the large majority of former Key

System bondholders and stockholders who joined in the plan for readjustment. "Although no expenditures were made for solicitation of security-holders," Lundberg says, "and in spite of the fact that all classes junior to the first mortgage were required by the plan to subscribe 25 per cent of the par value of their holdings for the purpose of paying off half of the first mortgage on the properties, an unusually high percentage of assent to the plan was obtained."

"Former security holders who were not willing to join in the plan and contribute towards the reduction of the first mortgage no longer have any interest in the properties. Of these non-assenting securities, the small number of first mortgage bonds will be paid off. The second mortgage bonds will receive a payment of about four per cent."

"This means the elimination of $8,490,619 per value of old transit company securities and makes the new capitalization less by several millions than the rate base value of the properties as established by the State Railroad Commission.

Budget Outlook
"The street railway industry and financial world today has its own comment to make on the successful readjustment of the old Key's tangled affairs and Lundberg's announcement of future plans. "All agreed that the outlook was bright and that the readjustment was unusual in many respects. Attention was called to the fact that the readjustment was accomplished in a shorter time than any other of the same magnitude and at an unusually small cost due to the fact that the members of the readjustment committee served without fees, and all of the clerical work involved was performed by the transit company's regular staff."

"The readjustment committee is composed of: Charles R. Blythe, Robert W. Cross, Edwin O. Edgerston, Bernard W. Ford, Alfred J. Lundberg, C. O. G. Miller, Alexander McAndrew and John D. McKee.

"The Boards of Directors of the new companies are announced as follows:

"East Bay Street Railways, Ltd.—Herbert P. Bell, Frank R. Lloyd, Alfred J. Lundberg, Charles R. McMahon, Frank M. Smith, William P. St. Sure, and Chester C. Vargas.
"East Bay Motor Coach Lines, Ltd.—Bruce W. Campbell, James D. Cronin, Dudley W. Frost, Alfred J. Lundberg, William S. Penfield, Albert Strauberg, and Chester C. Vargas.
"Key System, Ltd.—Wayne R. Allen, Angus Clark, Sherer G. Culver, Alfred J. Lundberg, Alfred E. McLeh, James P. Potter and Chester C. Vargas.
"Key Terminal Railway, Ltd.—Edward M. Borgs, F. O. Cooke, Francis H. Crosby, Waldo R. Norris and R. M. Sims.

What Is a Wife's Job?

SUMMER brides and many wives of longer experience are still asking themselves the above question, and will be interested, we think, in the newly published, extremely intelligent answer to it made by a successful wife of many years' standing, a grandmother, in fact—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the "Governor's Lady" in New York.

What is especially notable in Mrs. Roosevelt's definition of a wife's job is her omission of two of the categorical imperatives listed by nearly everybody who spoke or wrote on the topic even as recently as twenty years ago.

Then—and for how many years back!—there were two "musts" featured in every patronizing editorial, every sisterly bit of counsel addressed to the married woman.

First, she MUST know how to make her husband's favorite dessert.

Second, she MUST (blushing each writer emphasized the command) Run Baby Blue Ribbons Through Her Fingers.

Like herself, Eleanor Roosevelt is old enough to have read those hints for brides; nor is she too old to chuckle, as we do, when she recalls them; to wonder whether such smug sapience was more insulting to the minds of wives or to the materialism of husbands.

Men like desserts, also dainties, but no man must always have been something more than black-berry pies and blue ribbons.

Now she can over understand, but I shall go on with fruitless dreaming. Of having pleasure of chess and hand.

What the modern wife accepts as her tripartite job—with the emphasis on the most important part—is admirably expressed by Mrs. Roosevelt in the current Good Housekeeping, as follows:

"In the wife's job there are three fundamentals—being a partner, being a mother, and being a housekeeper and homemaker. Formerly we had been arranging the phases of the job in the order of their importance. I think we would have put being a mother first and next being a housekeeper and homemaker, and then being a partner. But to-day we understand that everything else depends upon the success of the first. The husband in their personal partnership relation. So from the modern point of view that comes first.

"Partnership! Companionship! And fitness for it! It is the major requirement for modern marriage.

"I am not saying," adds Mrs. Roosevelt with a graceful gesture toward the successful wife of other days, "that the wives of to-day can hope to be better companions than were some wives of the past. The great change is that for more generally we recognize the importance of such companionship. To-day, I think, there are far more wives who are good companions than there used to be."

To be the companion of a man's play, as well as of his work, Mrs. Roosevelt rightly deems vital. "A wife," she states, "must be able to take an intelligent interest in her husband's interests. Notice that I say in his interests, not merely in his job. Her interest must not go so far as to be the companion of a man's play, as well as of his work, Mrs. Roosevelt rightly deems vital."

There have been two recent illustrations in the news of how marriage may crack beneath the strain of prosperity when husband and wife are not partners in division, as well as in duty. In a New Jersey suit for the reduction of alimony, it was brought out that when the husband was a deckhand earning $40 a month and his wife did the washing, they were happy, but after he had made a fortune in Wall Street and they, presumably, had time to play as well as work, the home broke up. Again, in a separation suit pending in New York, the husband has declared, significantly: "I had comparatively little or no trouble with her when I was earning less than $60 a week."

FINALLY, Mrs. Roosevelt strikes the modern note in her discussion of a wife's job, when she takes occasion to point out that marriage is a job for two; that the husband must co-operate in managing the home and in bringing up the children.

The wife of the Governor concludes, crisply: "I have never thought it was any more a wife's job to keep her husband's mind off his business worries by entertaining him than it is a husband's job to entertain his wife and keep her mind off the thousand and one domestic duties that may be tiring her."

24 TISH A DAY
Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

If the dinner table looks fresh and cool and the first course is something pleasant and tempting, then any dinner, whether a company or merely a family one, is on the high road to success.

To many of us not soups have little appeal during the summer months, even when the courses that follow consist mainly of chilled food. We want something flavory, something decorative, something different to tempt our appetite.

Entertainers could learn much about varying the first course of dinners from native Californians who have devised many delicious hors d'oeuvres. There it is not unusual to serve the salad course first. It may be half of an avocado filled with French dressing thinned with lemon juice or tarragon vinegar. Slices of avocado alternated with sections of grapefruit or thin slices of tomatoes is another favorite.

There are many delicious and tempting combinations of summer appetizers. Canned anchovies with celery, olives, and a slice of tomato is one so absurdly simple to assemble that even it has become popular even with picknickers. Others, however, demand long and thorough chilling in the refrigerator and much of their appeal lies in their attractive appearance. Here are some suggestions that will doubtless suggest many other combinations:

Spread rounds of toast with canned, devilled ham, the most highly-seasoned variety, and just before serving put it for a moment under a hot broiler so that the meat sizzles. Serve with a stalk of celery stuffed with pate de foie gras or roquefort cheese and a tiny individual mold of carrot and cabbage salad in gelatin.

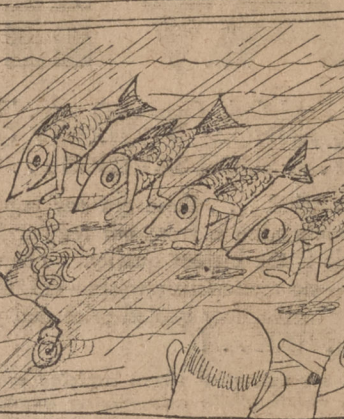

On a bed of shredded lettuce place a whole pimiento, and on this one large or two small artichokes. Surround with artichoke hearts marinated in French dressing, olives stuffed with almonds, and plain celery.

Good Furniture Types for Narrow Sun Rooms and Living-Dining Rooms

By Alma Zaiss

Does Miss Zaiss expect to be married shortly and wonder if you could help me in furnishing the enclosed. I want to use the room as sort of combination for living and dining. Have in mind buying a sofa, two upholstered chairs, two small chairs, extension table, radio cabinet, screen, small table, lamps and some pictures; furniture of the graceful French type but nothing too formal or ornate. Do you think these pieces would be a nice choice? If so, how would you arrange the furniture? I was thinking of using a sort of rose-red, deep blue and gold for the color scheme. Do you think that would be nice? Wish to thank you

American women have spent themselves for years to raise money for churches, to keep churches functioning smoothly. Yet though a woman's vote is equal to a man's at her country's elections, many of the churches still refuse her suffrage in their voting groups. Though we have women Mayors, Governors, members of Congress, few religious denominations recognize the woman minister. It is increasingly difficult to interest women in religion—the brand dispensed by evangelists—may not the explanation lie in organized religion's reluctance to give women full rights and honors?

Glassware for the Table

WITH modern science restoring at last much of the beauty of the glassware of centuries ago when its manufacture was a precious art, a housewife can add to the loveliness of her home by buying inexpensive and lovely glassware, according to a writer in "Successful Farming."

An entire dinner table can be set in colorful, shining glass of a clear cool green, rich amber, azure blue, golden topaz, and a delicate rose, advises the writer. Blue and green are particularly refreshing colors for summer tables; rose suggests apple blossoms, sweet peas and roses; and golden topaz, a delicate rose, advises the writer. Blue and green are particularly refreshing colors for summer tables; rose suggests apple blossoms, sweet peas and roses; and golden topaz, a delicate rose, advises the writer.

This glass may be had with a delicate tracery of design or perfectly plain, and plates, for instance, may be round or square, or even eight-sided. One may buy a complete luncheon or dinner set, or, better yet, it may be bought in open stock fashion.

TO-DAY, in these compact homes which we have exchanged for the adequate dwellings of ten or twenty years ago, furniture must indeed serve several purposes—and serve them cleverly, with no outward signs of the quick shift and changes that go on behind the scenes.

If the living room is also to be the dining room, it must play both parts so well that while we are enjoying the room in its first capacity we shall not be reminded of its second role. And again, when the dinner hour arrives, there should be no pulling and pushing about of heavy overstuffed chairs and other furniture to make ready for the meal; no inconvenience in the making of setting the table, in serving or in removing things afterward.

Miss R.'s problem illustrates our topic particularly well. She is to be married and in this apartment—her home making bow to her little world—there should be no makeshifts and no insufficiencies. . . but an arrangement that will help housekeeping to move smoothly and with nicety, sacrificing as little dignity as possible in performing the extra duty required of that room.

We are not sure that Miss R. would be happy with French furniture in this combined living-dining room. . . unless she has in mind French provincial or modified French peasant pieces, which would be very charming. If she is contemplating the more delicate French furniture, however, we shall do our best to help change her plan. The period is too luxurious, shall we say too "dressy," even in its less ornate aspects, to fit into the practical scheme which has been laid down for it.

If Miss R. does not care for the French Provincial, then she might consider pieces as adaptable as those shown in the upper photograph. Furniture types that are also graceful and refined, and adapt themselves to practically any scheme.

The diagram shows our plan for Miss R.'s room and includes all the pieces she has mentioned except the serving table. We believe that she would find a lowboy a better living room piece than the conventional serving table and it would afford equal convenience.

The extension table she mentions must be carefully chosen or it will be an unwieldy piece. We should prefer to see a drop-end table or a reproduction of an English library table of it would be nice to have a small, shallow chest of drawers with a hanging shelf above it. These two appropriate living room pieces will hold the linens, silver and other appointments for dining and give no hint of their service to the casual observer.

The sofa need not be over 5 feet long, unless it must be used as an extra bed, and the two overstuffed chairs should also be trim of line and medium in size. The chair by the radio might be a wing chair and the one by the sofa an overstuffed type like the Lawson chair shown in the photograph. The two smaller chairs used for dining may be comfortable open arm chairs of the type illustrated—admirable chairs for either living room or dining room use.

The colors Miss R. suggests are good. She could have a deep rose-red or rose-mahogany rug; draperies of cream linen, with an English floral design in reds, blues and gold with green foliage. It would be nice to repeat the patterned linen in a slip cover for the wing chair and to have the sofa upholstered in dull gold wool damask or a similar self-figured fabric.

The chair beside the sofa may be covered in cotton brocade or a brocade having a rather small pattern in harmonious colors; seats of the open arm chairs to be in blue, and in its scenic pattern the wallpaper screen may repeat the greens found in the linen pattern. Lamp shades of plain gold silk or mellow parchment would be good in such a room.

At this time a nest of pretty tables might prove a good investment for several reasons. If they are of a design that lends itself to such a treatment, the low table can be used as a coffee table before the sofa; one of the two higher tables as an end piece to the right of the sofa, and the third as a unit in the usual way.

Then later, as the home grows and more furniture is added, the tables may return to their nest, to be used as a unit in the usual way.

Miss R. also intends to buy pictures and they will contribute much to the charm of her room. There should be one fine large picture for the space above the sofa, one above the lowboy and one over the radio.

We have not been asked for suggestions for the long narrow room, which appears to be a sun room, but we are pleased to illustrate for Miss R. and for other readers some new sun room pieces which are particularly good for the proportions of such a room. Note the clever little sofa on wheels, and the ample modern table before it; the lightweight but sturdy and comfortable chairs and the two smart modern occasional tables of metal, with bakelite and glass tops.

Nothing of comfort or convenience has been sacrificed in designing this furniture, which would serve well for both winter and summer use. We need to exercise a bit more imagination in outfitting the sun room than we have been in the habit of doing. And it is good to find that manufacturers of modern pieces are making things very easy for us through the originality and the flexibility of their newer designs.

You and Your Child

"Fresh"

"MABEL, did you forget to bring home your rubbers?"

"I never saw such a child!" said mother, in exasperation. "Yesterday you forgot to bring the book you needed for your home work, and later you forgot to get the bread. Why are you always forgetting?"

"I'm sorry," answered Mabel, penitently, "but you forget sometimes, too. You forget to buy salt or butter, and to phone people, and lots of things. I often hear you say, 'I forgot.'"

"You're getting entirely too fresh," said mother in a huff.

Now was Mabel "fresh"? I'm sure she didn't mean to be. She was simply frank and outspoken in defending herself. Sometimes things sound "fresh" when they really aren't.

We have to learn to distinguish between remarks that are actually rude and those spoken frankly, as between friends. We parents of to-day are in a very difficult position. We want our children to regard us as chums, and yet we expect them to treat us with stand-offish, old-fashioned respect. It just can't be done!

Rudeness, of course, ought never to be tolerated! We should never be guilty of talking rudely to the children, and, likewise, we should demand that they treat us with courtesy. But when they talk to us in the same manner as they do to their associates we have to call upon our sense of humor, and smile, and be grateful!

Particularly when the youngsters get into the adolescent stage do they inform us that our walk is ungainly, that our taste in ties is shocking, that our jokes are stale, and that our grammar is somewhat faulty. They are not saying these things with an intent to be disagreeable or "fresh," but because they are at the critical stage and can't help themselves. For the first time in their lives they have broken away from our apron strings, and so are able to stand off a little way from us and evaluate us. Never again will they be so critical of us. A little later on they will be blinder to our shortcomings, or more tolerant of them. Perhaps we can benefit from some of this frank criticism. At all events, we should not allow it to disturb us. Let us take it with good humor, knowing that the children love us just as much as ever, and do not mean to hurt us or be "fresh."

A little thought will usually help us to distinguish between "fresh" remarks and those that only sound that way.

Plant Flowers Somewhere

W

HEN a small, bedraggled geranium is being coaxing to grow and bloom on some tenement window sill, it makes the dweller of a pleasant modern apartment seem rather blind to the charm of nature if there is not even so much as a basket of trailing green hanging from a window.

Flowers and plants growing in baskets and boxes as a green decoration to the windows of the city apartment are as cheering as the glow of lights on a dark, stormy night. And flowers bespeak the refinement of the dwellers within.

There are many nooks and corners, small verandahs where plants will grow. A garden plot is not necessary and the small assembly of pots and jars is less back-breaking to care for.

A common wooden tub in which butter is contained may be salvaged from the grocery store. Similarly a nail keg from the hardware man of the neighborhood. The round tins in which cookies and crackers are packed likewise make good containers for hydrangeas, ivy, tall ferns and innumerable other plants. When given a coat of paint these prove to be sufficiently decorative for rather pretentious abodes.

Drainage holes must be bored in the bottom and a layer of stones or broken pieces of flower pots placed within to the depth of three or four inches. Soil in layers of dirt, sand and loam mixed with fertilizer should be filled in to the top. It is never too late in the summer to start potted plants, which may be taken indoors when the weather becomes cold.

Buy gloves with what it saves

It isn't necessary to pay 50c or more to get quality in a dentifrice. Listerine Tooth Paste, made by the makers of Listerine, comes to you in a large tube at 25c. Note how it cleans, beautifies and protects your teeth. Most over it saves you approximately $3 a year over 50c dentifrices. Buy things you need with that saving—gloves are merely a suggestion. School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said:

"One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.
